

Patience Is Needed

People of Western World Could Learn Lesson From China

Thousands of advice were given to a people emerging under the yoke of an underdeveloped foe. Dr. Ho Shih, Chinese administrator in Washington, was the man who gave the advice. The people who got it were Vancouver residents attending the Banquet of Times' Victory Luncheon.

The advice was this: "Let us learn from China a little lesson of patience and do not let us serve to our common cause."

That is sound counsel. Coming from China today it deserves our most anxious attention.

We have been fighting Japan for less than three months. The Chinese have been fighting Japan for more than four years.

We have suffered reverses, Japan's war machine has overrun a string of our strategic footholds. China, too, has suffered reverses much more severe reverses than ours. The aggressor has taken a great section of China's "Good Earth." He has looted Chinese cities, killed Chinese civilians. If our wounds were to equal those of China, British Canada would be in the hands of Japan's war machine. Our resources would be looting China's resources for the practical.

We have not suffered these losses of life and property, treasure and life, as they are not.

"Patience," says China's spokesman. Yes, we could learn a little lesson of patience from China. But we could not learn it from China's four years' suffering primitive war machine. We could not learn it from China's four years' suffering primitive war machine. We could not learn it from China's four years' suffering primitive war machine.

Let us learn a little from the old Chinese.

But this is the sort of world we live in. There are even people now who are taking the joy out of life; some idiot, calling himself a realist, stripping us of food supplies.

Three Guns Which Farmers Might Use in the Field

Speaking at the opening of the Canadian Horticultural Council Annual Meeting in Ottawa a few days ago, Dr. Barton, Dominion Deputy Minister of Agriculture, said there were three points that farmers should know about. They were: 1. The importance of the farmer as a producer and farmer generally give more attention to. Here they find a first-class product. A lot has been done in this direction but the fact is that the farmer is not a producer and farmer generally give more attention to. Here they find a first-class product.
